Books and one care for Father?

Does any one care for father?
Does any one want the poor old man to have a quiet death?
The father, a stout figure for his comfort,
And tells on from day to day,
Although his sleep over grows slower,
And his dark locks are learning to gray.
Does any one think of the due time?
He is called now daily to pay—
Million bills, college bills, doctor bills,
There are some kinds of bills every day;
Like a patient horse in a trial mill,
He works on from morning till night;
Never thinking of self or his labors,
Does any one make his home bright?
But right just because he looks troubled,
To say he's not fit to be a father,
Might bring him to his knees;
He will tell you while he may live,
In return he only asks kindness,
And such pay money in give.

Curtain Lakes.

On the top Mealfuivone, a hill in Invernesshire, Scotland, is a lake one hundred and eight feet long and eight feet wide and eighteen feet broad which never freezes and is always full, without the appearance of any regular supply. This lake is said to be unfathomable, but the contrary is now ascertained.

About seventeen miles from this lake is another called Loch Wain, which is covered with ice all the year round. On the top of a ridge of mountains in Portugal, called Estrela, there are two lakes of great extent and depth, especially one of them, which is said to be unfathomable. What is most remarkable in these is that they are calm when the sea is at its roughest, and when it is stormy, which makes it probable that they have subterranean communication with the ocean; and this seems to be confirmed by the pieces of vessels they occasionally wash up, though almost forty miles from the sea.

There is also another very curious lake in this country, which, before a storm, makes a frightful rattling noise that may be heard at the distance of several miles. And there is a pool or fountain called Fervenca, about twenty-four miles from Coimbra, which abounds not only with fish, but even the lightest bodies thrown into it, such as cork, feathers, straw, etc., which sink to the bottom and are seen no more. To these may be added a remarkable spring near Evora, which purifies wool, or rather converts it with a case of stone, but the most amazing circumstance is that it throws up water enough to fill a tub to the very brim, though it is perfectly dry.

Why John Randolph Didn't Marry.
Regarding the allegation of want of a wife, it may be forgotten, if such he was, or his malignant feeling at least excused, when we consider the following incident in his early manhood: He had paid his addresses to a young lady of equal social position with himself, asked her hand in marriage and was accepted. The day of their nuptials was announced, the invited guests assembled, but for the ceremony arrived, and the priest closed reading the functions of his holy office. The bride sent a message to her affianced husband that she wished to meet him privately for consultation before proceeding to the hymenial altar. He obeyed the summons, and was conducted by her parents and other relatives, and asked to sign a paper for a marriage settlement as a condition precedent to the performance of the ceremony—a document prepared without his knowledge and of the existence of which he had now lost complete recollection. Not desiring to notice any one present but who had plighted him his love and faith, he inquired of her if this demand had been prompted by others or by his own voluntary desire. Receiving a reply that it was an act of her own free will, he bade her adieu and retired from the assembly.

This circumstance is supposed to have had a lasting influence on Randolph, to have blunted the fiery feelings of his nature, and to have given that cast of his character which has been converted into misanthropy. [New York Sun.]

The Eagle on Love.—Love is admittedly the emblem of love. An old tradition says that a rose gathered upon midsummer eve was kept in a clean sheet of paper until Christmas day, when it was to be exchanged with her beloved in her bosom, when he who is to be her husband will come and take it out. In Thuringia the rose which is similar in color to a love charm, a pink who has several leaves, will grow upon the paper itself, and then scatter them upon the water; that which sinks the last, representing her future husband. In some parts of Germany it is customary to throw rose leaves on a coal fire, as a means of insuring good luck. In Germany, as well as in France and Italy, it is believed that if a drop of one's blood be buried under a rose-tree it will insure rosy cheeks.

A New York doctor has a daughter who is now 22 years old, a perfectly formed woman, with the exception of her head, which is too large. Her mother died in premature birth. She speaks a few words, but changes perfectly. She is thoroughly educated. Being debarred from all human association by her misfortune, she has sought and found partial alleviation in the cultivation of all small forms. She has one of the purest, highest and truest of souls. She is very religious—naturally so. She is a close carriage and with her head closely muffed. She speaks without any trouble, but owing to the peculiar formation of her throat, mouth and nasal organ, the sound of her voice resembles very much the singing of a pig.

The young men of Warren county wear gold chains attached to Irish potatoes, instead of watches. This accounts for the expression, "get up at eight o'clock."

The National Surgical Institute at Indianapolis, Indiana, has long been well and universally known throughout this city and vicinity. A number of long-suffering citizens, now residing in a corporation to sound bodies and minds, are their present happy condition to treatment received at this Institute, and now that a number of the skilled surgeons of the Institute are to make a professional visit to Danville on the 2d and 4th of July, at the elegant Hotel, we hope to bring in a act of humanity and justice in recommending the afflicted, in all means, to see them and know valuable or opportunity hereafter.

Leave it to me.—The liver is the important organ of the whole human system, as it controls the life, health and happiness of man. When it is disturbed in its proper action, all kinds of ailments are produced, and the organs of the body, the blood, and of the brain and nervous system, are all immediately connected with the workings of the Liver. It has been successfully proved that Green's August Flower is unequalled in curing all persons afflicted with Dropsey or Liver Complaint, and all the various symptoms that result from an unhealthy condition of the Liver. Name—Samuel Boyle, 107 Main Street, Puddingfield sold in all towns on the Western Continent. Three doses will prove that it beats what you want. For sale by Robert & Sons, 4 Main Street, 107 Main Street.

J. N. DAVIS says that those indebted to him had better see to the payment of their accounts, as they may find them in the hands of Bobbit.

BURNE.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Shanks rejoice over the advent of a big boy—Thomas H. Shanks—and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Allen, over another girl—mentions of names.

BANBURY.—Mr. Frank Wilmer having rented the privileges of the Barber Shop at Crab Orchard Springs, Mr. Fred H. Rivers can be found at the old stand at the Commercial.

To close out our stock of Champion Machines we are now offering at wholesale factory prices, combined Mowers and Reapers, 40 feet at $110; 45 feet at $115. Weare & Evans, Ag't.

STABLE OPEN.—The new stables connected with the St. Asaph Hotel are now completed, and Capt. Richards is prepared to take care of your horses as well as yourself in the best of style.

FOR TOILET.—A good deal of feeling is manifested in this county in favor of Home Wm. Lindsay, for Governor, and his enthusiastic friends that date will be sent to the Convention instructed to cast its vote for him.

SHROPSHIRE.—Mr. G. H. Engel, the white-awake Dutchman of Somerset, is again, again in trouble. His creditors are trying to force him into bankruptcy, so much so that he has had more, when we consider that his liabilities are stated at $7,000 and his assets at only $1,000.

WALNUT TIMBER.—Mr. Wm. Battle, of New York, is here, buying walnut logs to ship to Europe. He pays about $25 per thousand feet, board measure, for them in the rough, and no greater is the expense of preparing them for shipment, handling, freight, &c., that a fair size log will bear.

THE CARRIAGE.—Judge E. W. Turner finished on yesterday his round of appointments for speaking in this county. He met the people at each of the precincts, and the encouragement he received has greatly assisted him. If he does not carry this county, he is sure that he will get a large proportion of the vote. The Judge left yesterday for Adams.

A Negro Girl Day.—Last Sunday was one of the biggest of the many big days that the colored population have had here. That the colored population have had here.

The occasion was a basket meeting, at which the preachers announced their audience by delivering funeral sermons over those who failed to have them preached at the time of their death. To prepare for the dinner, bee-eggs were stolen, gardens and hen-roosts robbed, and every thing eatable and comestible appropriated.

MAIDENS.

DIDN'T CARE THEM.—Mich Chennault, a negro woman, was tried before Judge Lytle, Wednesdays, under an indictment for carrying concealed weapons and acquitted.

BANBURY.—O. F. Poosiek, of Banbury, has filed his petition in Frankfort. Priority claims, $25; unexecuted Habitation, $2750; assets, personal property, $750; chose in action, $1,100.

HOP.—A social hop will be given at Crab Orchard Springs to-night, to which, the elevet manager, Mr. L. S. Tervis, especially invites the country people. A brilliant time may be expected.

NEARLY AT CRICKETMAN.—We notice that the oldest soldier of the war of 1812 present at the re-enact in Paris this year, is 94 years. Mr. James Shackleford, of Casey county, an old veteran of that war, is in his 97th year, and is in pretty fair possession of all his former faculties.

MISS LESSONS.—We call attention to the advertisement of Mrs. Jno. M. Phillips. She is a most accomplished teacher of music, both vocal and instrumental, and there is no way that a young lady can spend her vacation more pleasantly or profitably than to put herself under her charge.

ALEXANDER HORSES.—When you go to the great race at Louisville, on the 4th of July, be sure and stop at Alexander's Hotel. Its accommodations are unsurpassed in the city, and the charge per day is only $2. These obliging Clerks, Messrs. A. W. Jones, W. R. Logan and J. J. Sullivan, will see that you are well attended to.

STEAMBOAT CITY.

Friday Morning, June 21, 1878.

A True Bill.

He was the manager of a church fair, and one morning he walked into the newspaper office and said: "Want an item this morning?"

"Of course," replied the editor. Whereupon the visitor laid the following note upon the table:

"The ladies of the —— church will give a festival at their vestry hall next Friday evening. Literary and musical entertainments will be provided, and a supper will be served to all who may desire. The ladies in charge of the affair have much experience in such matters, and are sure to provide a good time. The admission will be only fifteen cents, and it is certain that no one can spend that amount to a better advantage. Be sure to come and take your friends."

When the editor had read it, he said: "Oh, I see, an advertisement."

"No, not an advertisement. We propose to hold a festival and supper, and —"

"Very good. Did the Doctor strike you?"

"He never forgot himself," said Pierson.

"Did you get into any trouble?"

"I know how to take care of myself," said Pierson, with dignity.

"Didn't give you enough to eat or wear?"

Pierson snatched a dastardly look from his shining broadcloth and consulted a gold watch, but never deigned to reply.

Said the Hon. Tom Corwin, solemnly: "Don't you know, you misguided scoundrels, we have spent enough money getting up our entertainment that we can't afford to advertise it without increasing the price of our tickets. In such a matter this we ought to be willing to help each other."

"Well," said the editor, "if it goes into the local, I suppose you would reciprocate by reading a little notice in your church next Sunday."

The visiting brother asked what notice, and the editor wrote and handed him the following:

"The Weekly Chronicle for the coming year will be the best and cheapest family paper in Maine. Its proprietor has had much experience, and has all the help which a large outlay of money can procure. His paper has a larger circulation than any other published in the country, and is to be furnished at only $2. It is certain that no one can spend that amount to a better advantage. Be sure to take the Chronicle, and subscribe for your friends."

The manager hemmed and hesitated, and then said, solemnly, that he doubted whether it would be judicious to read such a notice, but suggested that it was printed, copies of it might be distributed at the door of the vestry on the evening of the entertainment.

"Yes," said the editor, "but it would attract more attention in the middle of a sermon. It will interest a large number of your congregation, and bring a good offering, besides, so much money is spent upon the Chronicle that I don't see how the owner can afford to print handbills to advertise it without increasing the subscription price. In such a matter as this we ought to be willing to help each other."

Then the gentleman saw the situation, and left very hurriedly.

Our Happy Heart.

Have you a noble, happy heart to-day? Envied privilege. How calmly you seek your pillow! how sweetly sleep! What a world this is nothing so sweet as giving comfort to the distressed, and getting a sun ray into a gloomy heart. Children of sorrow meet us wherever we turn; there is no moment that tears are not shed and sighs uttered. Yet many of those tears, those sighs, are caused by our own thoughtlessness? How many a daughter weeps the very soul of a fond mother by acts of unkindness and ingratitude? How many husbands, by one little word, make a whole day of sad hours, and unkind thoughts? How many wives, by angry recriminations, estrange and estrange their loving hearts? How many brothers and sisters meet hot to vex and injure each other, making wounds that no heart can heal? Ah, if each one walked upon this maxim day by day—"strive to make some heart happy"—sorrows, vexations, meditations, hate, with their hundred evil associates, would forever leave the earth.

Col. Bob Ingersoll's doctrine of no hereafter leads Alvin P. Hyde to relate this true story: In Stamford, some years ago, the Rev. Mr. Church, a Congregational minister, turned Deist, and finally disbelieved in any future. He preached a sermon to prove there was no hereafter. No body, excepted of it and he felt uneasy. Meeting an old sinner named Horace Colburn, Church said: "Horace, how did you like that sermon?" "I don't know," said Colburn, thrusting out his tongue (as was his manner when tickled). "I don't know. I'd rather go to hell than go nowhere." —Stamford Times.

As English scientists assert that flies have a speech of their own and are not limited to the irritating buzz for which they are chiefly distinguished. By the assistance of this telephone, an insectivore which ingests sound, the fly across a box is said to sound almost as loud as does a horned horse's wooden bridge. A curious noise accompanied the tramp of the fly, which, it was suggested, was caused by the pinching of its proboscis.

Tom Corwin and the Barber.

Dr. Graham, in 1852, was the proprietor of the Harrisburg (Ky.) Express, since purchased by the Government as a military newspaper, having 11,000 had a favorite negro named Pierson, who was the leader of the colored band, and who, when not in the ball-room or pavilion, walked about in faultless broadcloth and kid gloves, and, it is said, would often talk to a negro woman not four-fifths white, and never to a negro. In the height of the season, when he looked over on the donor of a half a dollar, and only smiled when the eagle shone in gold, he ran away. Being educated he had no difficulty to write his names and go to Ohio, and had often been there before.

He went to Columbus to amuse himself with legislation, and there he met the Hon. Tom Corwin. "I do not remember the date when he was Governor," said: "Is Dr. Graham here, Pierson?"

"I am alone," said Pierson.

"Give my love to the family, and especially to Miss Ella, when you go back," said Tom.

"I am not going back, said; I run away."

"Very good. Did the Doctor strike you?"

"He never forgot himself," said Pierson.

"Did you get into any trouble?"

"I know how to take care of myself," said Pierson, with dignity.

"Didn't give you enough to eat or wear?"

Pierson snatched a dastardly look from his shining broadcloth and consulted a gold watch, but never deigned to reply.
